Ancestors of Stuart Meade Bailey

by

Brenda Bond Bailey

This book is lovingly dedicated to the memory of Stuart Meade Bailey, beloved by everyone who ever knew him.
A finer gentleman never lived.

ANCESTORS OF STUART M. BAILEY

by

P R E F A C E

This is the author's second family publication and supplements her "Ancestors of Herbert Taylor Bond" (1956).

Like the earlier genealogy it follows the same approved pattern, except that references confirming ancestral findings appear at the end of each generation instead of in the form of a bibliography as before.

Mrs. Bailey has proved herself an accredited researcher and her book merits public acceptance, not only as evidenced by her work in print but in her many manuscript compilations which bear the professional touch. All of her investigations in this field stem from original sources and are not just taken from available books to be found on family shelves. Consequently, as a librarian familiar with the methods employed by historical analysts, good and bad, I have no hesitation in commending this volume.

Arthur S. Maynard

The Freeman's Oath

In all the early records, the date is given when a man was made a freeman. That does not mean that he was previously a slave, but that he had to take the oath of allegiance in order to have a vote in town affairs, hold office and be a proprietor in the colony. To take the oath he had to be a member in good standing of "the church" which in the Mass. Bay Colony meant the Congregational church of the Puritans, in the Plymouth Colony it meant that he was a member of some recognized church. There was freedom of religion in the Plymouth Colony, but not in the Mass. Bay Colony.

The colonists were made up of proprietors and commoners. The proprietors were men of good standing and some wealth who were able to buy property, donate money to the Colony and had families. The commoners were men who had come to America alone, or had only the money for their passage or did not belong to "the church." They were given at least four acres, and could earn more, and were given rights on the "cow Common" which was a place or places set off in the middle of town or nearby, where the cattle were guarded when not in the fields.

In these days when people feel insulted when asked to express their allegiance to this country, it is well to realize that our ancestors had to swear fealty to King and country. The freeman's oath is as follows:

I-----, being by God's providence an inhabitant and freeman within the jurisdiction of this commonwealth, do hereby acknowledge myself to be subject to the government thereof, and therefore do here swear by the great and dreadful name of the everlasting God, that I will be true and faithful to the same, and will accordingly yield assistance and support thereunto, with my person and my estate, as in equity I am bound; I will also truly endeavor to maintain and preserve all the liberties and priviledges thereof, submitting myself to the wholesome laws and orders made and established by the same. And further, that I will not plot or practice any evil against it, nor consent to any that shall do so; but will truly discover and reveal the same to lawful authority now here established for the speedy preventing thereof. Moreover, I do solemnly bind myself in the sight of God, that when I shall be called upon to give voice touching any such matter of this state, where in freemen are to deal, I will give my vote and suffrage as I judge to mine own conscience may best conduce and tend to the public weal of the body, without respect of persons or favor of any man; so help me God in the Lord Jesus Christ.

Stuart Meade Bailey was a "self made man" if there ever was one. His father died when he was only seven and his mother, having no means of supporting her children, placed Stuart and his brother Custer in the Stricker St. Orphanage in Baltimore. When Stuart was twelve, the boys were transferred to the McDonough school on scholarships as orphans of a Civil War veteran. Stuart graduated from there at the age of sixteen and went to work for the Fowler Manufacturing Co. in Baltimore. He was very ambitious and went to the Univ. of Md. Law school at night to further his education. He boarded with Mrs. Rebecca Hearn and as he didn't have much money to pay for a room, he slept in Mrs. Hearn's dining room. That meant that he worked all day, went to school at night, then came home and studied until late and had to get up at six in the morning so that Mrs. Hearn could set the table for breakfast for her boarders. Mrs. Hearn's neice, Susan Nichols, came in from the country to visit her Aunt and became acquainted with Stuart. After that he often visited her at her father's farm in Clarksville, Md. and they were married in 1904. They lived in Baltimore and Stuart held various jobs there. About 1916 he went to work for the Totty Trunk and Bag Co. of Petersburg and after some years transferred to their New York office, where he worked until his retirement in 1947.

Ezra Hann Bailey was left an orphan early as his father died when he was only three. His mother's sister, Sarah Hann, had married Mr. Digby Bell of New York and Jane Bailey took her baby and went to live with her sister's family. I can find no record of her death or if she married again but she certainly managed to give her little boy a good education and brought him up with the best people in New York. There is a book entitled "The First New York (Lincoln) Cavalry" written by William H. Beach which tells something of Ezra as a young man. He owned his own horse and belonged to the Disbrow Riding Academy at 59th St. and Fifth Ave. and at the start of the Civil War he was one of the founders of the First New York Cavalry. An advertisement in the New York Tribune called for volunteers and stated that two men would undertake to horse and outfit fifty volunteers. These two men were Mr. G.W. Richardson, chairman and Mr. Ezra Hann Bailey, secretary and were the only officers of the group.

Bailey

in the town, also Justice of the Peace. He came to Leonidas a single man but after a visit to New York he brought back a wife in Sept. 1834.

He was elected to the state House of Representatives and went to the state capitol which was then Detroit. He was appointed by the chair to the following committees: Education, Organizing town and counties, State Prison. He died suddenly at his lodging in Detroit at 11 A.M. and was eulogized on the floor of the House that day. In his honor it was resolved: the members of the House and the Senate will wear crepe on the left arm during the remainder of the session; the members of both houses will attend the funeral of the deceased to-morrow at 3 P.M.; a committee of three members of the House and two members of the Senate be appointed to superintend the funeral of the deceased; the meeting of the legislative bodies be adjourned out of respect to the deceased.

The funeral took place at the Hall of the House of Representatives on what is now Capitol Park, Rt. Rev. Bishop McCrosky of St. Paul's Episcopal Church officiating. Five hundred copies of the eulogy by Dr. Brown were printed.

John Cheshire Badham married Miss Waddell on her deathbed. He then entered the Confederate Army and became a Lt. Colonel of the 5th N.C. Regt. and was killed at Williamsburg, Va. while leading his command.

Mary Elizabeth Badham married Gen. Jesse Rowland (Rolin?) Stubbs 3/23/1868 and had two children, Mary Octavia who died young, and Mary Rolin b. 7/14/1870. After the War Gen. Stubbs became president of the Williamston and Tarboro Railroad Co., a lawyer and representative of the state Assembly. Mary Badham remained a widow for five years and then married Ezra Hann Bailey in Williamston. She was living in Boyd, Md. with her children when she received news that her husband was ill in New York and she rushed to his side shortly before his untimely death. She left her daughter Jane Bell with Nellie Hall in Flatbush, put her two little boys in an orphanage in Baltimore and went to Oxford N.C. with her eldest daughter Rolin Stubbs. Rolin edited a newspaper at the Oxford Orphanage trying to support her mother. The work was too hard and she visited the Drakes and Webbs, the Hann relatives for a while, and sold books for Harpers. She met and married Hobart Tuttle in Hartford, Ct. 1899

Jane Bell became sick and was sent to King's Mountain, N.C. from which she received a scholarship to attend Greensborough Academy and she studied teaching. After her graduation she went to Hartford, Ct. and lived with the Greens for some years while she taught kindergarten there. She went to Baltimore and lived with her brother Stuart for nineteen years. Her sister Rolin died 1925. In 1933 Jane went back to Hartford, Ct. and shared a house with Miss Margaret Laidlaw until 1957 when she returned to Baltimore to live with her brother Stuart again.

Custer Bailey was in the Spanish-American War and held various jobs and lived many years in the west. He died in 1919.

Mary Badham Stubbs Bailey lived with various friends and relatives in the south until her death in 1891 in Clarksville, N.C.

William 11/23/1736

The name of William Badham first appears in Chowan Co. 1719 but the story is that he emigrated from Wales and was in Eastern Md. about 1711. In 1723, he bought fifty acres of land adjoining the town of Edenton from Robert Hicks. He bought other properties from then to 1734. He was a member of the House of Burgesses from Chowan Co. Justice of the Prescint Court and one of the Commissioners of the town of-Edenton.

Badham

In 1735 he married Mrs. Martha Mooney, sister of John Halsey, sheriff of Chowan Co. His son William was born a month after his death. A deed of gift from Mrs. Martha Badham conveys to son William several negroes and personal property 1737. When the son William was fourteen years old, he petitioned the Court to be placed under the tuton of James Craven, his god-father, until the age of twenty one to learn the business of merchant. This was with the consent of his uncle John Halsey.

References to all the Badham material are from the Chowan Co. court records, wills and deeds.

George Geer was one of the earliest settlers in North Groton, Ct. He was the son of Jonathan Geer of Mevitree, Devon Co, England and in 1635 he and his brother Thomas emigrated to America. Thomas settled in Enfield, Conn. and George settled in Boston. In 1651 he went to New London with Robert Allyn and others and in 1658 he married Sarah Allyn and was given a tract of land adjoining that of Robert Allyn. That lot was fifty acres and he soon purchased 150 acres from Eleazer Isbell, which was part of the original Poquotannock grants. In 1665 the town granted him 100 acres more land and he also purchased tracts in Preston and in what is now Griswold of Owaneco, son of Uncas. He lived to be 105 years old and is buried near the Welcome A. Browning farm in Griswold.

The Geers came from northern France in 1066 with William the Conqueror and the name may be Anglo Saxon meaning spear, or perhaps the officer in charge of equipment (gear) of soldiers of the Baron.

Samuel Street Graduated from Harvard College 1664. There were seven in his class and he outlived them all by six years. He lived in New Haven and taught in the school that Davenport founded with a gift of 500 pounds from Gov. Hopkins. The object of the school was: to promote good learning and a knowledge of the Classics, Latin, Greek and Hebrew. Rules: "Boys should have learned to spell their letters well and begun to read and all girls be excluded as improper and inconsistent with such a grammar school as the law enjoins". School hours were from 6-11 A.M. and 1-4 P.M. in winter and until 5 P.M. in summer. In 1681 the Gen. Court of Conn. granted Mr. Street 200 acres of land and in 1686 a house lot of 6 acres, and owned other property, 120 acres in all. In 1696 the town voted him 200 pounds in provision pay and he was "esteemed a heavenly man."

James Avery emigrated to America 1630 with his father in the Winthrop company and lived first in Boston, then Salem and Gloucester, Mass. About 1650, James with his wife and three oldest children moved to New London along with a large group from Gloucester including the Rev. Richard Blinman, pastor of the Gloucester Church. James Avery built the famous "Avery Hive" on Poquonnoc Plain in 1656 and moved there with his family. Each generation added to the house until 1894 it was burned to the ground. A bronze statue of James Avery mounted on a column of Scotch granite now marks the spot where it stood.

James Avery was 12 times elected to the General Court between 1658 and 1680. Groton was set off from New London in 1705 and James Avery and his wife were the first members of the new Church. He was a prominent leader in conflicts against the Indians and in the spring of 1676, during King Philip's War he was given command of the troops from New London, Lyme and Stonington with as many pequots as he could gather. Capt. of trainband. Paid 236 pounds in taxes, third largest in colony.

Christopher Avery and his wife and son emigrated to America together and lived near each other. He followed his son to Conn. and purchased the house, orchard and lot of Robert Burrows. Claimed exemption from training because of age June 1667. He was freeman in Gloucester 1652, selectman in Gloucester 1646, 1652, 1654, clerk of trainband, constable, clerk of market. In 1658 he sold his lands in Gloucester and moved to what is now the business center of Boston. Had a house lot where the Post Office now stands on Devonshire St. In 1663 he sold it to Ambrose Dow and followed his son to Conn. 8/8/1665. He died 3/12/1679.

In England Christopher was a weaver and his family were from Cornwall. The family dates back to at least 1310 when a Thomas Avery lived at Bodmin, Cornwall.

The name Avery is from Ivry, a locality in Normandy, France. Ralph Ivorie had a duchy in Normandy 1180. It is spelled Avere in the Domesday Book and the name was numerous in Cornwall.

John Gallup was with his father at Block Island when they rescued the ship of John Oldham who with his crew was massacred by the Indians. Both were in the Pequot War and went to New London, Ct. 1651. John had a house lot east of Stallyon and Bailey's acres and it was composed of 8 acres from the center of the town to the beach. For services in Pequot War he received 300 acres of upland up the Mistick River in 1653. The next year he received 150 acres more there and moved there with his family. He was Deputy to the General Court 1665-67. He was over sixty when King Philip's War broke out but he joined Capt. John Mason at the head of 70 men and a group of Mohegans, and was killed in the fighting. He came to Conn. with John Winthrop jr.

Hannah Lake came to America with her mother in the "Abigail" and arrived 10/6/1635.

The following table provides a detailed breakdown of the data presented in the main body of the report. It is organized into four main sections, each corresponding to a different category of analysis. The first section, 'Category A', covers the initial phase of the study, while the subsequent sections, 'Category B', 'Category C', and 'Category D', represent different stages or aspects of the research. Each section contains a series of sub-categories, which are further divided into specific items. The data is presented in a structured format, allowing for easy comparison and analysis across the different groups and items. The final section, 'Category D', provides a summary of the findings and conclusions drawn from the data. The overall goal of this appendix is to provide a comprehensive overview of the data and to facilitate a deeper understanding of the research results.

Gallup

Her mother was Margaret (Read) Lake, sister of Eliz. the wife of Gov. Winthrop. Her father was John Lake of Normantown, Yorkshire and descended from the Gailleys and Albinis, Earls of Arundel. John Gallup came from Mosterne, Co. Dorset 1630 in the "Mary and John" in the Winthrop fleet and went first to Dorchester, Mass. where he was one of the founders of the town. His wife and children came here 1633. He was freeman 1634 and founder of the Dorchester church that same year. He was a grandson of Thomas Gallup and Agnes (Watkins) Gallup of North Borwood and Strode.

He owned Gallup's Island in Boston harbor, a meadow on Long Island, a sheep pasture on Nix Mate and a house in Boston. He was an expert mariner and traded along the coast and furnished the only communication at that time with Rhode Island and Conn. He was often called on to pilot ships in Boston harbor.

The name came originally from Germany and was a combination of Gott and Lobe, which mean God and Praise. The name was Kollopp in Loraine and the English spelling has been Gollop, Golloppe etc.

James Morgan came to America with his two younger brothers from Wales and arrived in Boston April 1636. His brother John, journeyed southward and settled in Virginia and became the progenitor of a famous family there. The brother Miles, joined a group from Roxbury, Mass. and went west to become one of the founders of Springfield, Mass. James lived in Roxbury, Mass. and in 1650 he moved to New London where lands were granted to him in what is now a western suburb of the city. In 1656 he sold his homestead and moved across the river to Groton where he was given a large grant of land. He was a large and prosperous dealer in lands, distinguished in public enterprise and often employed to make land surveys, establish highways, determine boundaries and make adjustments in civil difficulties, and as a magistrate was trusted by all.

Morgan

He was one of the selectmen of New London for several years and one of the first Deputies to Hartford in 1657 and continued to serve in that capacity for nine years.

In 1662 his property ranked third on the town assessment list. The spot where he lived and died is about three miles from the Groton ferry on the road to Poquonoc bridge and the homestead has stayed in the Morgan family at least untill 1900.

The name Morgan means "by the sea" or "sea born" and in German means eastern light from the sea.

Morgan is a Welch name of great antiquity and in 725 A.D. one of the ancient Welch Kings called Gla-morgan is credited with the invention of trial by jury.

Robert Allyn who was born 1608, emigrated to Salem, Mass. in 1637. He united with the church 1642 and moved to New London in 1651. He was one of the company who first purchased the town of Norwich and he obtained the grant of a large tract of land on the Thames River, including Allyn's Point.

The Allyns were of English descent and a coat of arms is in the possession of Gurdon F. Allyn of Salem Conn. History informs us that a certain William Allyn was a Protestant Martyr of Walsingham, England during the reign of "Bloody Mary." He refused to follow the cross in a procession and refused to read the "book of Sports" and was condemned to death. He was permitted to go to the stake, untied and there stood quietly, without shrinking until he died, one year after John Rogers suffered like martyrdom at Smithfield.

John Bill emigrated to America 1633. followed by his children in 1635 in the "Hopewell" and they settled first at Salem, Mass. His son James moved to Pulling Point (now Winthrop, Mass.) and owned a large tract of land there next to Dean Winthrop.

In 1613 John Bill appears in London as a publisher to His Most Excellent Majesty King James I. One of his earliest published works was a book by King James himself and a copy of it may be seen at the N.Y. Society Library at University Place. He printed Bibles and prayer books and it is believed that he printed the first news sheet "English Mercurie".

The name is one of the oldest in English annals and members of the family have lived in Kent, Shropshire, Stafford, Yorkshire and Wales. The first of the name of whom we have any authentic account was Thomas Bill, b. abt. 1490 though the name has been traced back to the year 1300 when surnames first came into use. The above mentioned Thomas was a physician and was in attendance during an illness of Princess Elizabeth in 1549.

Bill

He received degrees of M.A. and B.A. in England and travelled on the Continent where he received a degree of M.D. at Pavia, Italy in the celebrated university established by Charlemagne. He was physician to Henry VIII and Edward VI and received a royal grant of one hundred pounds per annum.

William Bill b. 1505 was highly educated and received several degrees and was made president of St. John's College on the recommendation of Lord Somerset. He died 1561 and is buried in Westminster Abbey in St. Benedict's Chapel. He was the only person that held the titles of master of Trinity, provost of Eton and Dean of Westminster at the same time.

Charles Bill b. London abt. 1550 his son, was a celebrated Latin scholar and made Latin secretary to the King. His son John Bill, b. 1576 was a publisher in London.

Andrew Lester first appears in Gloucester, Mass 1643 and the name was then spelled Lister. He was licensed to keep a house of public entertainment 1648. He moved to New London, Ct. in 1651 where a street was laid out for the accomodation of the Cape Ann Co. and called Cape Ann St. He had lot #4. Andrew Lester was Cōnstable and collector of taxes in New London 1668 and the first deacon of the Groton church. In 1651 the marsh land lying along alewife cove was given to a company of men who undertook to drain it, and they were given "the land now under water forever."

He also had a daughter Hannah, perhaps born in England.

Henry Cobb was a member of Rev. John Lothrop's church group in England. Lothrop was imprisoned in England but Henry Cobb had come to this country 1632 in time to escape being arrested with the church group. In Sept. 1634 Lothrop came to America and Henry Cobb joined him in Scituate, Mass. Lothrop's group was not satisfied with the property there and got permission to move. June 26, 1639 they held a fast for "the presence of God in mercy to go with us to Matlakeese" which was the Indian name for Barnstable. Henry Cobb sold his house in Scituate to Manasseth Kempton for twenty pounds, one cow and two goats.

December 15, 1635 Brother Cobb had a house lot in Barnstable of seven acres, also a neck of land on which is now Cobb and Smith's wharf. He had a great lot of sixty acres on the south side of the County Rd. where he raised cattle and two lots of six acres each in the new Common Field. In 1635 he was invested into the office of deacen and kept that office for thirty five years. He was made Ruling Elder 1670 until his death. Oct. 10, 1643 he was one of a committee to appoint places for the defense of women and children in case of attack by hostile Indians. June 5, 1644 he was "licensed to draw wine" at Barnstable.

Cobb

He was made freeman 1633. His second wife, Sarah Hinkley was the sister of Gov. Thomas Hinkley.

Stark

8. Aaron Stark

He was a volunteer in King Phillip's War. He d. 1685.

This connection is interesting as it is the only Scottish family I have found in all the Bailey lines. The Stark family is very ancient in Scotland and the family name was Muirhead. John Muirhead, second son of the Laird of Lachop, while hunting in Cumberland forest, seeing King James in peril of his life because of a bull who was angered by the hounds and about to charge him, said John Muirhead stepped between the King and the bull and grasped the bull by the horns and "by his strength almost wringing ye head from him, for which he was called Stark and his posteritie after him and bears ye Bull's head in their arms."

The pedigree begins with Muirhead of that ilk of Bothwell 1100 until the reign of Robert 2nd. Stark in ancient Gallic means stength. The family was given the estate of Killermont and for generations the first son was always named Archibald.

Cost of arms: azure a chevron argent, between three acorns in chief or and a bull's head erased of ye 2nd in base.

Bennet Eliot's will indicates that he was a man of wealth and had large estates and there is a very complete genealogy of the Eliot family from Sir William de Aliot who was a knight with William the Conquerer through a long list of distinguished and famous men. Hugh Eliot discovered New Foundland 1527. Edward Ellyot was Bishop of Stortford, 1577. Although Bennet Eliot and his wife never left England, all of his children emigrated, married and settled in America. His son John was called the "Apostle of the Indians" and he translated the Bible into the Indian language so that he could more easily convert them. Brother Francis helped him in his work with the Indians and his brother-in-law Edward Payson was a member of his church and also helped.

Capt. John Gorham's descent is traced from the de Gorrand of La Tannierre, near Corram in Maine on the borders of Brittany. The ancestor went to England with William the Conqueror. John Gorham emigrated on the "Philip" with his brother Thomas and Father Ralph and was in Plymouth in 1637. He moved to Marshfield 1646 and was constable there 1648. He became freeman 1648 and in 1651 was a member of the Grand Inquest of the colony. In 1652 he moved to Yarmouth and purchased a part of the Hallet farm including the grist mill and tannery. He was Deputy to the Plymouth Colony Court 1653. In 1669 he was granted land in Swansea and caught a cold fighting in King Philip's War which caused his death.

He was selectman in Barnstable 1673-4 and Captain of the Militia from Yarmouth 1675 and appointed Captain of the 2nd company of Plymouth forces 10/4/1675.

Jonathan Brewster did not emigrate on the Mayflower with his father but came on the "Fortune" Nov. 1621. When he was in Holland he lived in Pieterskerkhof and was a ribbon maker. In 1630 he moved to Duxbury, Mass. and was deputy to the Gen. Court in Plymouth Colony 1639-44. He moved to New London Ct. about 1649 and was deputy to the Conn. Gen. Court 1650, 55-58. He was one of the principal men in the settlement of Duxbury and the establishment of the church there and listed as "gentleman." He owned a boat and traded along the coast to Virginia.

Uncas gave him land on the south side of the "Coave called Poccatannocke" 4/25/1650 and in return Jonathan promised forever to keep a trading post there for the Indians. In 1637 he was military commissioner in the Pequot War and was a member of Miles Standish Co. in 1643

Elder William Brewster emigrated to America on the Mayflower and was the only college graduate on the ship. He was educated at Cambridge Univ. and was a man of refinement and possessed a large estate in England, but because he was deeply religious he sacrificed everything to follow his convictions. As Rev. Robinson was too sick to make the voyage on the Mayflower, Brewster became the spiritual leader of the Pilgrims and saw the Plymouth settlement grow from the first winter of fifty people, to over 8000, with a constitution and schools. There is not room here to tell all about him and do him justice and the Brewster Genealogy gives a very full account of William Brewster and his family and descendants.

It is interesting to note that William Brewster was a very vigorous man at the age of fifty four and acted as chaplain for the military group, and always carried a gun as well as his Bible. "The good Elder Brewster fights as he prays and though he would rather convert the enemy than hurt him, he would not dream of allowing him the first fire." He had two swords, a pistol, dagger and armour. One of his swords is now in the possession of the Mass. Hist. Society.

John Howland was the son of Henry Howland of Fen Stanton, Huntingdon shire, England and emigrated to America on the Mayflower. In 1624 he was given four acres of land and 1626 he was one of the men that assumed the debt of the colony. He was Assistant 1633-35. Deputy to the Gen. Court 1640 and very active in preparations for the Pequot War. Meadowland in Duxbury was granted him 1636 and he received numerous other grants later. He was the oldest surviving member of the Mayflower passengers except for John Alden and he was buried on Burial Hill.

There is an interesting account of him and his family in "The Truth About the Pilgrims by Francis R. Stoddard.
